

Conflict of Interest Disclosures

This form is to be completed by the first author and submitted to the Editor via email (editor@nags.org.au).

The first author should consult co-authors to ensure that the information is correct.

This manuscript, and the material it presents, is original unpublished work that has not been submitted for publication to any other journal or publication.

Yes – This is original unpublished work not submitted to another publication

No – Please provide details

.....

The author(s) has financial/professional associations or competing interests that might lead to a perception of conflicts of interest.

Yes

No

(If Yes)

I/We make the following disclosures that I/we agree can be published with the manuscript:

Disclosures should include any financial links to, or support from gambling organisations, government departments or regulatory agencies or advocacy groups; any restrictions on publication placed on the author/s by sponsors or associates, etc. In the case of book reviews, disclosures should also include associations with the book’s author(s).

.....

Note: Authors should disclose all form of support that enabled the research to take place. Typically, support for gambling research could take a number of forms – eg funding, provision of data and/or personnel, travel support, active collaboration in the project, special access to venues/patrons, etc.