Hotel Grand Chancellor, Hobart

Call for Student Conference Scholarship Applications

The National Committee of the National Association for Gambling Studies (NAGS) is offering up small number of scholarships to assist students to attend the 29th Annual Conference. The aim of the scholarships is to encourage promising students to continue their research in the field of gambling and gambling related issues by enabling them to meet with colleagues, hear about new research, and have a chance to discuss their own research with an audience of experts in the field at the Annual Conference. The scholarship comprises full registration for the Conference and $500 contribution towards travel and accommodation expenses for attendance at the conference.

Scholarship students are expected to assist the conference organisers in some way. This assistance will be greatly appreciated by the conference organisers and provide additional networking opportunities with NAGS Committee members and other conference participants. For example, scholarship students may be asked to help staff the registration desk, assist in the conduct of the Annual General Meeting or help set up or take down the poster session. Actual duties will be assigned as the conference nears, while the level of assistance is not expected to be overly onerous, students should identify any time constraints in their application forms.

Applications will be assessed by the National Committee or a sub-committee thereof and will be based on merit. Preference will be given to students who are current financial members of NAGS and where applications are endorsed by a current financial member of NAGS. The Committee's decision will be final, and no discussion will be entered into or appeal heard.

Who should apply?

Full and part time students at an Australian tertiary institution currently undertaking studies relevant to gambling and gambling related issues.
